AABI Winter Meeting
February 16-19, 2010

Auburn, AL, USA

Hosted by Auburn University

As an aviation professional, researcher or educator, this conference is an excellent opportunity to join the university-industry-international organization dialogue about issues of mutual concern. The conference program will include speakers and panels from industry, government and academia.

An Outcomes-Based Training Workshop will be held Thursday morning, February 18. During the Workshop, a special “Lessons Learned” presentation will be given by Assistant Professor Tom Garza from Louisiana Tech University. Plan now to attend!

Following the Members Luncheon Thursday afternoon, the Industry/Educator Forum will be held. The Forum has been a useful device for AABI to maintain alignment between the aviation industry and educator member institutions, ultimately serving the interests of graduates of those institutions. By analyzing changes occurring in this dynamic industry and selecting topics for the Forum that are relevant to the preparation of future aviation professionals, AABI assures that curricula and criteria for accreditation remain relevant. The formal cycle of summer presentation by industry members and winter responses from educators keeps all stakeholders engaged in this important exchange. The Educators Response will be moderated by Dr. Mary Niemczyk, Arizona State University.

The conference hotel will be The Hotel at Auburn University and Dixon Conference Center. Reservations should be communicated directly to the Hotel’s Reservations Department toll free at (800) 228-2876 or (334) 821-8200. In order to receive the preferential conference rates, telephone requests must identify your affiliation with the AABI Winter Meeting. Rates cannot be changed at check-in or check-out for guests who fail to identify their affiliation at the time the reservation is requested. Reservation requests received after January 31, 2010, at noon local time, will be accepted on a space available and a rate available basis. To reserve a room, the reservation must be guaranteed by credit card or a deposit equal to the first night’s rate, plus applicable taxes.

MOTON FIELD

Tuskegee, Alabama

Tuskegee Airmen National Historic Site

Moton Field was the primary flight facility for African-American pilot candidates in the U.S. Army Air Corps (Army Air Forces) during World War II. It was named for Robert Russa Moton, second president of Tuskegee Institute. Moton Field was built between 1940-1942 with funding from the Julius Rosenwald Fund to provide primary flight training under a contract with the U.S. military.

The Army Air Corps assigned officers to oversee the training at Tuskegee Institute/Moton Field. They furnished cadets with textbooks, flying clothes, parachutes, and mechanic suits. Tuskegee Institute, the civilian contractor, provided facilities for the aircraft and personnel, including quarters and a mess for the cadets, hangars and maintenance shops, and offices for Air Corps personnel, flight instructors, ground school instructors, and mechanics. Tuskegee Institute was one of the very few American institutions to own, develop, and control facilities for military flight instruction.

After pilot cadets passed primary flight training at Moton Field, they transferred to Tuskegee Army Air Field (TAAF) to complete their training with the Army Air Corps. TAAF was a full-scale military base (albeit segregated) built by the U.S. military. The facility at Moton Field included two aircraft hangars, a control tower, locker building, clubhouse, offices and storage buildings and a vehicle maintenance area. The base at Tuskegee Army Air Field was closed in 1946. In 1972, a large portion of the airfield at Moton Field was deeded to the city of Tuskegee for use as a municipal airport which is still in use today.
